

The Daily Courant.

Monday, November 1. 1703.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Nov. 6.

Menz, October 30.

THE French Soldiers and Peasants who serve in the Trenches before Landau are very much incommoded by the Rainy Weather. They had given 3 Assaults to an Outwork of little Importance, and were twice repuls'd, but they carried it the third time. 'Tis reported the Besiegers have lost 3 or 4000 Men. They put the Peasants upon the most dangerous Service, and 500 of them have already been kill'd. The greatest part of the Besiegers Infantry is oblig'd to do Duty every Night in the Trenches, and the Trenches are full of Water up to their Knees. They give out that they expect 8 Regiments of Foot and 1500 Horse with some Artillery from Alsaria.

Frankfort, October 31. We receiv'd Advice yesterday from Manheim, that the French attempting to Storm a Redoubt of the outmost Fortifications of Landau were twice repuls'd, but the third time carried it, tho' with the loss of 1000 Men in the three Assaults. In the last Sally the Besieged took 400 Peasants. A Report is spread that the Count de Sturum is marching with his Army to relieve Landau, of the Truth of which we are doubtful. The French had begun to lay a Bridge over the Rhine at Spiers, but have left it off.

From the Harlem Courant, dated Nov. 6.

Frankfort, October 31. Our Merchants have Letters advising, that Count Sturum with 12000 Men is marching to relieve Landau, before which Place the French have not above 10 or 12000 Men Regular Troops. And 'tis said he is already arriv'd near Heilbron. P. S. The French are withdrawn some distance from Landau, of which we wait a Confirmation.

Liege, Nov. 2. The Army of the Allies separated yesterday, 12 Battallions and 6 Squadrons under the Count de Noyelles are come hither. The Regiment of the Baron de Trogne went hence to day for Huy, but he himself is gone to the Hague. The Enemies Army is likewise march'd into Winter Quarters.

Maastricht, Nov. 3. The Prince of Hesse Cassel is advanc'd with his Army to Zullik, Monsieur de Pracontal moves the same way to observe his Highness Motions.

Amsterdam, November 5. There are Letters from Liege and from Cologne, which say, that the French have abandon'd the Siege of Landau: But we expect a Confirmation of this, before we give intire Credir to it.

From the Harlem Coorant, dated Nov. 6.

Rotterdam, Nov. 4. On the 2d in the Morning at 10 a Clock the King of Spain sail'd by Dord in his Yacht follow'd by several others, and at Noon came to an Anchor before Ysselmonde where he Din'd, at 3 a Clock he pursued his Voyage, and at 4 arriv'd before this City. He was welcom'd by several Salvoes from the Queen of England's and the States Yachts, and from the Cannon on the Walls; and our Burghers who stood all drawn up in Arms on the Boompies along the Maes saluted him with repeated Volleys of small Shot, Which was return'd by the Guns of his Majesty's Yacht, which anchor'd at some distance from the Town. Then the Burgomasters went off in their Chaloup with Trumpets sounding, were receiv'd on board and introduc'd to his Majesty, whom they congratulated on his Arrival in the Name of the City. The King lay on board that Night, and yesterday Morning at 9 a Clock his Yacht weigh'd stood into the Old Head and entred the Town, his Majesty landed incognito attended by the Deputies of the States, and took a view of a large new built Man of War lying upon the Stocks, and of several parts of the City, but being discover'd and a Crowd gathering about him, he return'd on board his Yacht; in the Afternoon at 4 a Clock his Majesty with his Attendants took Coach at the Admiralty House, pass'd through the City to the Delft's Porte, and went in one of the States Yachts to Delft, and thence to the Hague. His Majesty gave the Captain of our Admiralty House a Gold Medal, on which is his Effigies with this Inscription, CAROLUS III. D.G. HIS PANIARUM REX. And on the Reverse an Eagle soaring up towards the Sun with this Motto, PATRUM VIRTUTE.

Hague, Nov. 4. Last Night at about 7 a Clock the King of Spain pass'd through Delft the Cannon of the Town firing all the while, which being heard here, the People got together in the Streets against his coming, and the Persons appointed by the States made ready to receive him. Between 8 and 9 he arriv'd here, landed without the Town, and made his Entry in Count Goes the Imperial Envoy's Coach, being accompanied by the Duke of Marlborough, the Imperial and other Ministers, and Persons of the chief Quality to the Palace prepar'd for his Reception call'd the Oude Hof, where a Guard stood ready against his coming in the Antichamber, and a Company of the Blew Guards was drawn up at the Palace Gate; Apartments were made ready likewise for his Majesty's Attendants, and several Tables were spread with Refreshments. Count Goes who went to see the manner of the King's Reception by the Deputies of the States at Schenken Seans with those Deputies themselves and those of the Province of Holland who congratulated him on his Arrival at Gorcum return'd hither with his Majesty. To day his Majesty appear'd publickly in the Voorhout: 'Tis thought he will go to see Amsterdam and other Places during his stay in this Country. Monsieur Pathieco the Envoy of Portugal had Audience of his Majesty on board his Yacht at Rotterdam. This Evening between 6 and 7 a Clock, the Duke of Marlborough, accompanied by all the English of Quality that are here, went with a great Train of Coaches to the Oude Hof, and in the Name of the Queen of England congratulated his Catholick Majesty on his Elevation to the Throne of Spain, he likewise likewise deliver'd a Letter to the same purpose from Her Brittannick Majesty.
